

designpataki

A3R0, Elliot Norlander · Mask Off (Aest...

3/8

#2

The Firelight | Narayan Sinha
Kolkata

designpataki NewonMag In a world overwhelmed by industrial waste, a new wave of artists reimagine what we throw away. From rusted gears to salvaged tools, these creatives repurpose forgotten materials into sculptures that challenge how we engage with art and see waste. Upcycling isn't just about reducing landfill waste—it's a bold statement about the power of repurposing in an era of excess.

DP spotlights 7 artists working with metal are proving that creativity can inspire change while respecting the environment. How many do you know?

1. Deval Verma @devalmetalart is upcycling through a mythological lens.

2. Narayan Sinha @firelightbynarayansinha is giving new life to salvaged metals.

3. Valay Shende @valay.shende composes satire through his sculptures.

4. Arzan Khambatta @arzankhambatta is creating a multi-sensorial installations.

5. Haribaabu Naatesan @haribaabu_naatesan offers an antidote to e-waste.

6. Sakshi Gupta @sakshiguptastudio transcends